SUPERLATIVE CHEEK.

If this investigation (Florida) is conducted fairly and honestly, as we believe it will be, good must result from it. Some one will be hurt, and possibly the Democratic party may find that its hangers on have disgraced themselves, but we have faith that a calm, unprejudiced inquiry will show that the Republican party, through not only its members and carpet-bag element, but through its leaders, has shouldered and perpetrated an infamous variety of crimes for which it should now be adjudged guilty. (Madison Democrat.)

Whatever may be the character of the Florida charges, whether they are partially true, or true to the letter, they cannot in any event overshadow the "infamous variety of crimes" which have not only been shouldered and perpetrated, but perpetrated by the leaders of the Democratic side of the House of Representatives. It requires almost an infinite amount of cheek to cry frauds in Louisiana and Florida, in the face of the fact that the Democrats have been engaged in stealing Republican seats in the House. A more vaunted display of shamelessness was never before exhibited in Congress. The frauds committed in the House during the present session, in unseating Republicans who were legally elected as one Representative from Wisconsin, can never be over-matched by anything that may have taken place in Florida, no matter what the result of an investigation might be. The sum of infamy was completed when Field, of Massachusetts, and Belford, of Colorado, were defrauded out of their seats.

Patterson, of Colorado, stole the seat to which Belford was entitled, and in commenting on the remarks which the former made a few days ago on the floor of the House regarding the Florida frauds, the Inter Ocean says: "The cheek of a government man has passed into history as the most comprehensive illustration of the superlative of impudence. For ten years it has done rhetorical justice to all kinds of impudent combinations, and until recently has been deemed adequate to any emergency." Patterson, of Colorado, the other day exhibited a cheek which puts a skinned milk expression on that of the government man and defies anything above, upon, or under the earth for a comparison. By the means trick on record he succeeded in stealing a seat in Congress, to which Belford was elected. He stole it by a miserable, flimsy fraud. He knows, his fellow members and the people whom he misrepresents know, that he is not entitled to the place he holds. In the face of all this he arises in his stolen seat, and, with the unctuous hypocrisy of Chaband, announces that there can never be peace in this country while the question of 'fraud' in the election of President Hayes is hanging over the people. He has examined the testimony carefully, and is satisfied that it is "conclusive against Mr. Hayes, and he continually walks in the valley of humility on that subject. The poverty of the English language was never so apparent. In the whole scope of the tongue, from the argot of the street gamin, and the slang of the thieves, to the classical utterances of Webster and Sumner, not a word can be found which will do the subject justice. We refer it to the people of Colorado well assured that they will express themselves in words plain enough to be understood by as great a fool as Patterson."

THE NEWS.

It is reported that a large percentage of the new settlers are well-to-do farmers from many of the older States, a great many going from Northern Wisconsin and Iowa. Should Minnesota hereafter escape the visitation of the grasshoppers, and continue to yield such enormous crops of wheat and other grain, it will not require many years to make the State one of the richest in agricultural resources in the Union.

It seems that Milwaukee is now completely in the hands of the lowest set of demagogues that has infested that city for years. The spirit which rules it is as low and degrading as that of Tammany ring. The Mayor's appointments have been disarming in the extreme. He has not only removed able and worthy men from office, but he has put in their stead men of little character and less ability. James MacAlister, who has long been Superintendent of the public schools of that city, and who had no superior in the Northwest, has been removed from office. It is charged that one of the reasons for his removal is that he would not contribute a portion of his salary to the election of the Democratic ticket. The language of the Evening Wisconsin on the beholding of Mr. MacAlister, is this: "In our conversation with Milwaukee politics for thirty years, we have never known an act of party degradation so base and vile as this. His removal under the circumstances was a shameful act. The better class of Democrats consider it an outrage on our system of public schools, which, as far as possible, should be rendered not only non-sectarian, but non-partisan. We desire that the people of Milwaukee should never forget an act of proscription based upon considerations which would have been deemed infamous even in the corrupt city of New York."

The State hospital has now eighty cows belonging to the dairy, and judging from the reports received from the institution, the investment will be a profitable one for the State. So far the trustees find that the dairy has paid well, and beside that, it furnishes the hospital with purer milk and better butter, than can be purchased at other dairies. It is an item worthy of note, that most of the milking is done by the inmates of the hospital. Though they are insane on many subjects they are perfectly sound on the milking question, and take great delight in performing the work.

We publish to-day a pretty full synopsis of the interesting resolution drawn by Hale, of Maine, at the request of the Republican side of the House, on the Electoral investigation. Randall has gone so far as to promise to recognize Hale for the purpose of offering the resolution. Judging from the scope of the resolution it seems doubtful whether the Democrats will permit it to be adopted. Should they allow the investigation to take place as requested by the resolution the Democrats will fare worse than they have done under the Glover investigations.

There seems to be some hope that the joint committee appointed to devise a new plan of electing the President will agree upon a bill. Whether such a measure will pass Congress at this session is doubtful. The events of the Presidential election of 1876 were so singular and remarkable, that the subject has really become one of supreme importance, and before another canvass arrives Congress should examine the matter thoroughly and pass a bill which will prevent a recurrence of any phases of the difficulty of 1876.

The latest report from Washington says the Republicans in the House feel confident of being able to defeat the Army bill. It is understood that the Texas delegation will go solid against it, and two Northern members who have indicated their purpose to vote against the bill, it is thought will be able to defeat it. There is no probability of its passing the Senate if it reaches that body, and in case of a dead-lock between the two Houses the chances for its final defeat in such a contest are regarded as certain.

It is estimated by the Kansas City Price Current that the Texas cattle drive this season will reach 300,000 head. The cattle are reported to be in good condition, and will reach their destination much earlier than last year. One hundred and ninety head have already passed Fort Worth and Fort Griffin. The Price Current also states that 85,000 head of cattle are in Southern Kansas ready to go to market by the middle of June.

President Hayes is tender hearted, and therefore easily moved when appeals are made to him in behalf of convicts. He seems to have more milk of human kindness for them than he has for the Republicans in the South. He has done well in thinning the population of the penitentiaries. During the first year of his term he has pardoned two hundred and forty-five criminals.

A Saturday's dispatch from Grand Haven, Michigan, says the frost in that vicinity on Friday night did considerable damage. The peaches are possibly saved from harm, but the grapes, and strawberries are badly injured, while the fruit farther inland, is nearly all killed. The slight frosts which have appeared in Wisconsin during the past two weeks have done but little or no damage.

The cable news is peace or war, but which it is hard to tell. All the powers are on the fence and from present indications will remain there for some time. In the meantime our business men are anxiously waiting for something to turn up. A little war of a year's duration would be quite acceptable.

THE EAST.

Count Schouvaloff's Return to London—Speculations Concerning His Mission.

LONDON, May 12.—Count Schouvaloff's return to London from St. Petersburg is generally expected to settle the question of peace or war between England and Russia. The secret of his scheme for settlement has been remarkably well kept. The best opinion is that it simply presents what Schouvaloff is satisfied is the least modification of the San Stefano treaty that England would accept from any European conference. It is believed to include a substitution for part of Russia's proposed territorial aggrandizement, a British guarantee of pecuniary indemnity, coupled with the condition that the respective rights of the powers in the Dardanelles shall remain unchanged. This, however, can be little more than surmised. There are subtle indications that there lie back of these propositions other important stipulations, the character of which escapes even speculation. It is thought that a peaceful settlement depends upon whether the Czar can be made to see the wisdom of postponing the realization of Russia's desire, for easy access to the Dardanelles, until Russia has recuperated her treasury, and her naval power shall be better able to cope with that of England.

Those who profess to know, deny the American stories of Russia's design to authorize privateering. They say that while private aid in maritime warfare would be sought, Russia will regularly commission in her navy all accepted vessels and officers that they may sail legally under her flag. No secret is made of the fact that agents have gone to America to solicit for purchase such vessels as are suitable, with a view of getting them out of neutral ports before war is actually declared, but the intent to violate neutrality is freely disavowed.

HALE'S RESOLUTION.

For the Investigation of Election Frauds in Florida and Other Places.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The following is a full synopsis of the resolution drawn by Hale at the request of the Republican side of the House, and for which Speaker Randall has agreed to recognize Hale for the purpose of offering it, either as an amendment or as an independent resolution, according to the shape which the Democratic resolution for investigation may take. It is not certain that the Democrats will so agree among themselves as to proceed with the matter, but if they should this proposition of the Republicans would be given a place in the House by the Speaker.

Resolved, That the Committee on Judiciary, to whom this House has committed the investigation of certain matters affecting, as is alleged, the legal title to the President of the United States to the office which he now holds, be and are hereby instructed in the course of their investigation to fully inquire into all facts connected with the election in the State of Florida in November, 1876, and especially into the circumstances attending the transmission and receipt of certain telegraphic dispatches sent in said year between Tallahassee, in said State, and New York City, viz:

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 9, 1876.—A. S. Havell, New York—Comply, if possible, with my telegram. G. P. RABET.

And that said Committee is further instructed to investigate into all facts connected with an alleged attempt to secure one electoral vote in the State of Oregon for Samuel J. Tilden for President and Thomas A. Hendricks for Vice President, by unlawfully setting up the election of E. A. Cronin as one of such presidential electors.

The resolution then proceeds to direct full inquiry into the following allegations: Attempts to bribe one of the legally elected Oregon electors; to recognize Cronin as elector; to investigate all facts relating to the transfer of money from New York to Oregon and all circumstances attending the transmission of certain telegrams between New York and Portland at the time of the Electoral count; to inquire into the circumstances attending the demands for money on or about Dec. 1, 1876, made on Pelton and Hewitt, and attempts to corrupt or bribe any officials of the State of Florida by persons acting for Pelton in the interest of Tilden; to investigate the circumstances attending the intimidation at Lake City, Fla., where certain white men put ropes around the necks of colored men and threatened to hang them, relieving them on their promise to form a Democratic Club and vote for Tilden; also the facts of the election in Jackson county, Florida, where the ballot-boxes were kept out of the sight of the voters, and the ballots deposited through openings six feet above the ground, and where the Republican votes thus deposited were never counted; also the facts of the election in Waldo Precinct, Alachua county, where the passengers of an emigrant train were allowed to vote; also the facts of the election in Manatee county, where 285 majority was returned for Tilden, and where there were no county officers, no registration, no notice of election, and where the Republicans consequently did not vote; also the facts of the election in the Third Precinct of Key West, giving 342 Democratic majority, where the Democratic Inspector carried the ballot box home with him and pretended to count ballots next day outside of the precinct; also the cypher dispatches which passed between Pelton in New York and Portland in regard to the purchase of a Republican elector, and the deposit of money by Pelton to accomplish the same.

—One of those accommodating individuals who are always full of suggestions as to what ought to be put in the paper, says "give the weather a rap." A good warm rap for May might perhaps lessen the chilliness.
—There will be a musical recital at Miss Battle's rooms, this evening, in which Miss Emma Baldwin, Miss Rose Hathorn, Miss Clara King, Miss Fannie Wright, Miss Wheeler, Miss Anderson, and Miss Baker will participate.
—The Greenbackers met, Saturday night in an upper chamber of Lappin's block. Mr. E. L. Graves, of this city, was chosen Chairman, and Mr. Hill Secretary. Hon. C. H. Parker, of Beloit, D. L. Mills, Mr. Sawin, of Evansville, and Mr. Lawler, of Janesville, made brief speeches.
—Peck's Sun says: "The party that came down from Fond du Lac to attend Burr Robbins' circus was headed by Mr. Kutchin, of the Commonwealth. Men never get so old that they will not follow a circus, but seventy miles is farther than people usually go to see a performance."
—Rev. R. J. Adams D. D., of Holyoke, Massachusetts, will preach in the Baptist church next Sunday. He is making the west a visit, and kindly consented to spend one Sunday in Janesville. He is a gentleman of high standing in his denomination, and is greatly beloved by the people of his church.
—A game of base ball was played yesterday. The Sunday school workers and preachers, will have to begin giving choruses to keep up their audiences, if this state of things goes on, as the diamond field is very attractive, especially when one can see drivers speed their horses at the same time.
—Mons Eilenburgh, a six-foot contortionist, who has been hanging about town for several months, and who was compelled by the Marshall to leave the city Saturday, has been heard from at Edgerton, where he represented himself as just leaving Burr Robbins' employ. His slick stories should be cautiously believed.
—Six of the angle-worm club are spending the day in trying to drown worms, by dangling them on the end of a fish-pole. Arrangements have been made for friends to meet them at the city limits on their return, and provide them with dry clothes, and a supply of fish, so that they need not seem to come back empty-handed.
—Trinity Episcopal church has extended a call to Rev. T. C. McLean, now rector in Aurora, Ind. Mr. McLean is a young man, a graduate of Racine College, and is spoken of as one eminently fitted to fill the position left vacant by the resignation and removal of Rev. Mr. Wallace. It is deemed probable that he will accept, and if so, will probably enter upon his labors early in July.
—Two blind men came very near meeting with a terrible accident yesterday, near the Monterey bridge. A piece of the fence protecting the stone quarry was down, and they were about walking off, and in a few steps would have tumbled down a distance of thirty feet, upon the stones below, when some passers-by in a buggy called to them and told them of their danger. Moral—the fence should be immediately placed in order, and the blind should not lead the blind.
—A youthful hoodlum conceived the idea that it would be a fine joke to steal the wash-chimney's laundry sign. He was just carrying it off when Mr. Nassechman, who stood in the doorway, unseen by young joker, made a grab, collared the offender, and commenced chattering at him in the unceremonious gibbering of his native language. It was the talk more than the shaking up which had received that frightened him, and he set up a distressed howling which called a large crowd together, who rescued the lad before he went into spasms. He will try his freaks on some one else next time.

—The Hessian Band are booked for the Opera House, Friday evening, May 17. They have already won a local popularity here, which is sufficiently extended to warrant them in expecting a crowded house. During their absence they have had a rushing business, and have everywhere received most complimentary notices. This will be their last appearance before returning to Europe, so that those who now miss this opportunity will doubtless miss it forever. With twenty solo artists, they render the most intricate music, and render it grandly, as all can testify who have heard them.
FROM THE PULPIT.
An Interesting Review of the Red-Ribbon Movement—Able Discussion from the Rev. Mr. Nichols, of Milwaukee, and Rev. Mr. Chappell, of Evanston, Illinois.
THE RED RIBBON WORK.
Rev. Mr. Sawin gave an interesting talk last evening on the work done by the red-ribbonists, and the future prospects. He deemed it no more than right that the public should understand the way in which Dr. McCollister happened to come here, and the financial arrangement made with him. It appears that Dr. McCollister came here and proposed to enter upon the work, and as several favorable letters had been received by various parties concerning the work done elsewhere, the temperance workers concluded to rally about him. They asked him what his terms were. At first he refused to talk of any financial features of the work, but on being told that business was business, and that the work could not be undertaken in this blind manner, he proposed that the citizens of Janesville should attend to the running expenses, and as for his own pay, he would be content with whatever contributions should be handed in at the close of his labors, whether they were large or small. It was with this understanding that the work commenced, and the temperance folks rallied around the work with enthusiasm. He deemed this explanation due the public, as the work was a public work. The names signed to the pledge during the three weeks' work numbered 1412. A few papers were lost, and in a few instances names were duplicated, so that there were probably about 1450 who had actually signed. There were many elements of good in the work done. It had awakened enthusiasm, had sent cheer to the hearts of many, and strengthened the cause of temperance. The work had two particularly good features. One was that instead of making a fight against those in the whiskey business, and arousing their antagonism, it strove simply to induce men to forsake their cups, and to thus take away the demand for drink, and lessen the trade. Another good feature was the fact that it was based on the idea of calling in the help of God, and the belief that the grace of God would keep a man from falling, when nothing else would. But there were defects in the work. There was one fatal feature, it being the clause in the pledge, by which the signer could, on personal application, withdraw at any time. A pledge taken on a man's sacred honor should be for time and eternity, as it was one of well-being to himself. The speaker put the query as to how it would do to have a marriage vow taken in this way, to be dissolved at the will of either party, or a church vow? He would be willing to have men take the temperance pledge for a definite length of time, a week, a month, or a year, but this indefinite pledge was almost worthless. Some would pull off the ribbon, take a drink, and put the ribbon back again, and then boast that they had too much honor to drink over the ribbon. But as to the future of the work, it was favorable. The mistakes of the past could be laid aside, and guarded against in the future. The work could be pressed forward to the goal of prohibition. Prohibition did prohibit, and the speaker pronounced himself a clear prohibitionist. He did not believe though in making the issue of prohibition or nothing. He believed in gaining what victories were possible, and from those pressing forward to utter prohibition. In this city, stop licensing saloons, and do not increase the present number. Draw a Mason & Dixon's line and say to the evil, "Thus far shalt thou go and no further." The moment any enterprise, good or bad, is stopped from further progress it begins to recede. He urged a general rally around all the temperance societies as one of the strong powers for right. The discourse was throughout stirring and full of interest, especially to those who knew the inner workings of the work.
AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
Rev. Gideon P. Nichols, pastor of Immanuel church, Milwaukee, preached at the Presbyterian church yesterday. His morning discourse was based on the text, Psalms 139:17, "How precious also are Thy Thoughts unto Me, O God." He said there were two kinds of thought, those which had eyes, and those which had hearts. Thoughts which had eyes were those of observation, called up from some external thing. Those never reached the inward intimacy of the soul, and were dismissed on the slightest pretext. The thoughts which had hearts however, came from within, called forth by love and affection, and from the inward promptings and character. He illustrated this by a traveler in a railroad coach. He might have his thoughts upon some stranger who had just entered the car, but those thoughts were easily dismissed or diverted by the entrance of another stranger, who would then become the object of thought. These were thoughts which had eyes. How different however were the thoughts awakened by the fact that beside the thinker sat an invalid wife, wearied with the journey. Every look of care, every expression of weariness, called forth thoughts which had hearts, thoughts which came from within. God's thoughts, were also of this dual nature. There was the outer circle of omniscience and foreknowledge, and within this was the inner circle of thoughts which came from the great heart of tenderness. He then spoke of the intrinsic value of these thoughts, they being such as a father feels for his children, and being directed toward individuals, of the expression of these thoughts of the heart in nature, and revelation, and the blessed consequences of these thoughts. The discourse was a choice one, elegant in diction, and full of instruction.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.
At the Baptist church yesterday Rev. F. L. Chappell, of Evanston, preached both morning and evening. His morning topic was that of "Redemption." In the evening he preached from Second Timothy 2:3 "Endure Hardship." He said that it is the part of mankind to be perpetually uneasy and disappointed. Injured honor, business adversities, physical exhaustion, individual grievances—some such causes affect nearly every human being. There is but little contentment. A life of wealth, luxury and contentment is what most persons seek. It is most pernicious. On the contrary, constant employment is the only means of perennial happiness. A life of labor is the only productive life. How came the myriads of articles which so conduce to our comfort? How came the beneficent results of education and of the professions? No great effort is produced otherwise than by infinite pain and labor. The security afforded by government is the result of labor—the reward of untold sacrifices. Even religious privileges have been multiplied and intensified by agony and suffering. In fact, every useful thing, mental, physical or spiritual, comes from labor. A life of labor is the only virtuous life. Continued ease and indolence inevitably conduce to vice. The career of Henry the Eighth forcibly illustrates this truth. A life of pleasure, too much wealth and too many wives proved his ruin. On the contrary, penury often leads to great achievements. A life of labor is the only one that shows the dignity of man. It is the prominent trait which distinguishes man from the lower animals. It leads to frugality and a consideration for the future. The Apostle, therefore, enjoins upon man to endure hardness for it leads to a productive, virtuous and dignified existence, while indolence is downward and destructive in its tendency.
THE WEATHER.
The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 49 degrees above zero and at 2 o'clock at 59 degrees above. Clear. One year ago to-day the thermometer stood at 71 degrees above.
The indications to-day are, partly cloudy winds, slightly warmer, and southerly weather.
KATE N. DOGGETT.
The above lady well known among art students as a translator of French and German art works, and a director of art studies in the West, and among the reformers as the President of the Woman's Congress, has been secured to give the closing lecture on Raphael, in the art course of the M. I. C., which will be given next Friday evening at All Souls church, illustrated with fine photographs. Let it be remembered, that none may fail to enjoy this treat. Ten cents admission.
THE CIRCUIT COURT.
A young man named Thomas Townsend pleaded guilty to-day to the charge of stealing an article amounting in value to $25.00, and was sentenced by the Court to eight months imprisonment at Waupun; the first three days to be passed in solitary confinement.
The trial of the case of Henry Morton against S. W. Smith and others was resumed this morning. The testimony was concluded about noon, and the case is being argued to the jury this afternoon. It will probably be given to the jury to-morrow morning.
BURGERS AT WORK.
An attempt was made shortly after 12 o'clock last night to burglarize the residence of Captain John Neal, No. 32 Washington street in the First Ward. The Captain, as is well known to most of the citizens, is away, and his family were alone in the house. They heard the fellows at work at a front window, and getting up, lit the lamp, which caused the burglars to hastily decamp. An examination of the window showed that an attempt had been made to cut a piece out of one of the panes of glass, so as to gain access to the catch which fastened the window. The putty had been carefully removed from one corner of the pane, and a scratch made with a diamond, so that it appeared that the burglars were just prepared to remove the piece of glass when the inmates of the house awoke and frightened them away. The job was evidently undertaken by some one or ones, who had some experience in the business, and not by ordinary tramps or drunken wanderers.
